

If someone says that your project is important to them and that they will deliver it on time and keep you posted on their progress, but don't keep you posted on their progress and deliver late, how can you use active listening to discern what they are telling you from what they are feeling?